Since 1969, the University of Nevada, Reno School of Medicine has prepared more than 3,100 students, residents and fellows to lead the way to better health. We pride ourselves on widespread outreach with a local touch, providing patient care and clinical training in Reno and throughout our rural communities. And the research generated in our own backyard is changing and saving lives around the world. Our work is influenced by a commitment to excellence, community engagement and spirit of adventure.

Join the celebration as the University of Nevada, Reno School of Medicine turns 50!
